

For Students

Are you a student with a disability about to graduate? Are you a recent graduate with a disability and starting your journey into the world of work? You likely have inquiries that this section can help you with! Whether it is how, when, and to whom to disclose your disability, understanding accommodations in the workforce; or, how to improve your employability skills (e.g., the interview, soft skills and networking), there are resources here to guide you through your employment journey. The aim of this portal is to best equip you with the information that can lead you to success. Each student and disability is unique, and we ask you to tailor this information to the ways you find most efficient to your circumstance.
